

Best Wishes for the Holidays and the New Year!

Season's Greetings!

It's been quite a year! January was marked by a bike accident for Eben (his fault), a broken arm, and a titanium plate and screws to hold everything back together. By some strange coincidence, the surgeon who put his arm back together again had operated on Sheri's ankles 30 years earlier, and was the first doctor in recent times to offer useful advice for helping Sheri's knee and ankle problems, leading to ankle-joint replacement surgery for her right ankle in October. Recovery has been good so far, and she has mobility in her ankle not seen in more than 30 years. If all continues well, her left ankle and right knee will be taken care of next year.

Melissa, now 21, is looking toward finishing her degree in fashion journalism, and is thinking about a Master's degree.

Patty is 18 (yikes!), graduated from high school, and has started at SFSU with the goal of a degree in Nursing.

Talia is 7, halfway through 2nd grade, and is enjoying cooking classes outside school and being read Harry Potter books before bedtime.

The goats are well, and we should have horses on the property soon (our new renters are horse owners). This should make it easier to get horses of our own when we're ready.

Eben's work is still the same, though the book isn't quite done yet – writing a book is harder than we realized!
